

4741-1-14

Veterinary Animal aide duties.

(A) After appropriate training consistent with generally accepted standards of veterinary medical practice, an ~~veterinary~~ animal aide may under the supervision of a licensed veterinarian or registered veterinary technician:

1) Prepare patients, instruments, equipment, and medications for surgery, exclusive of anesthetic agents and controlled substances, ~~and under the direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian or his or her assigned registered veterinary technician;~~

2) Collect and prepare voided specimens and perform laboratory procedures ~~under the direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian or his or her assigned registered veterinary technician;~~

3) Administer topical, oral and subcutaneous medications exclusive of anesthetic agents and controlled substances, ~~under the direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian or his or her assigned registered veterinary technician;~~

4) ~~Assist a licensed veterinarian or registered veterinary technician in performing~~ Perform diagnostic radiographic procedures ~~under the direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian or his or her assigned registered veterinary technician.~~

(B) After appropriate training consistent with generally accepted standards of veterinary medical practice, an animal aide may perform venipuncture for the purpose of collecting blood samples under the direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian.

Effective: 01/12/2008

R.C. 119.032 review dates: 10/11/2007 and 01/12/2010

CERTIFIED ELECTRONICALLY

Certification

12/17/2007

Date

Promulgated Under: 119.03
Statutory Authority: 4741.03(C)(9)
Rule Amplifies: 4741.01
Prior Effective Dates: 05/23/1996, 12/13/2001