Although some documents may be listed as both birth and nationality documents and identity documents, a document may only be used to satisfy either birth and nationality or identity, not both. A birth or nationality document or an identity document alone does not satisfy the citizenship document requirement. (xix) Affidavits made under penalty of perjury. Affidavits may be used only in rare circumstances when the agency is unable to secure evidence of citizenship from another listing. If the documentation requirement needs to be met through affidavits, the following rules apply:

(a) There must be at least two affidavits by people who have personal knowledge of the event(s) establishing the individual's claim of citizenship. The two affidavits could be combined in a joint affidavit. At least one of the persons making the affidavit cannot be related to the individual and neither person can be the individual.

(b) Persons making the affidavit must be able to provide proof of their own citizenship and identity. If the persons making the affidavit have information which explains why documentary evidence establishing the individual's claim of citizenship does not exist or cannot be readily obtained.
