The amendments generally help to organize this rule to allow for easier reading and comprehension. Substantively, the amendment adds the ability of the owner/shipper to substitute an owner/shipper statement in lieu of a certificate of veterinary inspection when importing cattle under this rule. The amendment also indicates what information must be included on either of the acceptable movement documents.

8. Importers of cattle and bison for the purposes of feeding and grazing must include additional information on documents that were originally required prior to amendment. This information is readily available to the producer as it simply calls for the number shipped, average weight, and designation of the animals. This is information that the producer should already be aware or could easily, with minimal time, discover.
