Sanitary regulations for bakeries.

No person suffering from any contagious or infectious disease shall be employed in or about any bakery. The proprietor or manager of such bakery shall require all employees, including himself, to submit to a physical examination at least once a year and to present a certificate from a physician making such examination that the person examined is free from contagious and infectious disease. These certificates shall be kept on file and exhibited on demand to any inspector of the Department of Agriculture, the District Health Commissioner or his deputies. The inspectors of the Department of Agriculture or the District Health Commissioner or his deputies may at any time require any person working in or about any bakery to submit to a physical examination to determine if such person is free from contagious or infectious disease. The physical examinations above referred to shall be made by the District Health Commissioner or by any physician authorized by him. Provided, however, that the requirements of this regulation shall not extend to those employees who never come in contact with the processing or handling of products for human consumption.
